

Q: Why doesn't the oculus of the Pantheon compromise the stability of the dome?

A: Because it is made of concrete, as opposed to stone. In stone arches and domes, the top stone is the one that assures the cohesiveness of the whole. However, concrete can support itself more independently than stone. Additionally, a thick ring of bricks surrounds the oculus to resist compression.

Tags: Imperial Rome